Overview

WINTER is an innovative program that successfully reverses the impacts of gender discrimination in construction and solves problems that have persisted for generations.

We strive to make equity real in Los Angeles by working with unions and signatory contractors that have the power to invest in women's training and employment focused in high-wage careers in construction.

These strategies and investments bring economic justice to our communities by making sure women are sufficiently skilled and supported; to be a pipeline of competitive workforce in the union construction industry.

WINTER is certified by the CA Department of Industrial Relations and the National North America's Building Trades Unions (NABTU) as an apprenticeship readiness training program utilizing a comprehensive gender specific apprenticeship readiness and the NABTU multi-trade curriculum (MC3) to introduce women to all trades. We support collaborations of unions and union apprenticeships to recruit and hire qualified graduates of WINTER and reduce workforce segregation through high quality construction apprenticeship readiness training and retention services.
